

Black theater company to present convocation

Karamu House Theatre, a touring professional company from Cleveland, will appear at a convocation Wednesday, April 7. The program will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Karamu House, founded in 1915, has "a Black perspective and a Black center of gravity with a multi-racial program that does not exclude anybody," according to Kenneth E. Snipes, executive director.

The Theatre, now in its 47th season, will present "The Lion Writes," a black experience ritual compiled from the works of 80 black poets and song writers, including Le Roi Jones, Larry Neal, Norman Jordan, Don L. Lee, Eugene Redmond and Gwendolyn Brooks.

The play has been highly acclaimed, being described by Peter Bellamy of The Cleveland Plain Dealer as full of "beauty, bitterness, hope and pathos."

It was performed at the inaugural celebration of Ohio Governor John Gilligan.

The program at Wartburg is presented with the support of the Iowa State Arts Council.

According to Dr. Richard Wiederanders, chairman of the Convocations Committee, "We are fortunate that the Iowa Arts Council makes possible the appearance of a company of this size and quality."

Karamu House, located in Cleveland's central city, provides a variety of services to the community, including a full-time nursery and pre-school, a theatre workshop, a cultural educational program and a staff of about ninety people, over half of whom are professionals in the arts.

Karamu House conducts some fifty classes and workshops in all phases of the arts and a variety of community-service programs.

Rape ballet

Mortimer (junior Dave Boedy) and Henry (sophomore Mark Jones) attempt to abduct Luisa (junior Jo Ralls) during the first act of "The Fantasticks," as Matt (freshman John Hoover) looks on. Performances will be repeated tonight and Saturday night at 8 p.m. in Voecks Auditorium.

SBP candidates campaign

By DICK LEE
and DALE GOEKE

Campaigns of the two remaining student body president candidates moved toward an April 6 election after the end of the student body nominating convention last week.

Delegates chose the names of juniors Bob Hilgemann and Rich Crawford to appear on the election ballot.

Hilgemann said that he is basing his campaign on his "record of service and honesty."

Crawford was out of town, and unavailable for a Trumpet interview.

Speaking of the possibilities of putting his platform into effect if he is elected, Hilgemann said, "My first concern will be to see that the campus governance plan is properly implemented.

"It will be extremely important next year for the SBP to spend time and to work closely with governance committee members and to make sure that those appointed to committees are competent, active and responsible," he said.

"Next fall I will be living on campus and will have a light course load so that I will have the time to devote to the governance plan and time for regular office hours so that I can be available to talk to students.

"Then too, I will concentrate on providing the student services as outlined in my platform and on defending students' rights," he added.

"Questions have also arisen about my being here during May Term because of legal proceedings relating to my arrest in Chicago last year. My lawyer, Harvey Sussman, has assured me that the proceedings will not prevent me from holding office either this May or next year."

Hilgemann remarked that his platform proposal to expand intramural athletics had been criticized because it seemed to favor men. He supports expansion of women's activities also, he said.

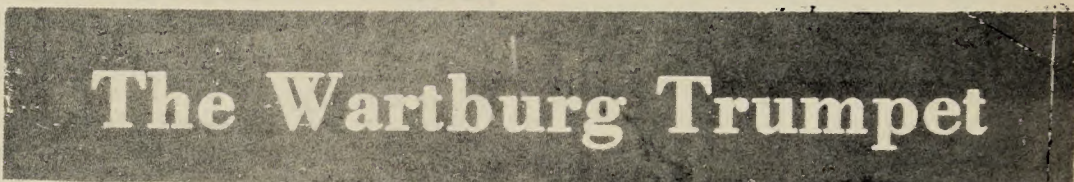

Hilgemann is available in the Student Senate office every afternoon to talk to students.

Crawford and Hilgemann were nominated on the sixth ballot of the nominating convention Saturday night.

Although Crawford was in first place on the final ballot, with 116 votes to 100 for Hilgemann and 53 for junior Kent Lewis. Hilgemann had led the first five ballots.

Crawford was in third place behind Hilgemann and Lewis until Steve Richardson withdrew from the race and threw his support to Crawford after the fourth ballot.

Wartburg changes calendar

Wartburg has adopted a new calendar which permits a student to complete a full term of study during the summer.

Two six-week sessions will be offered during the 1971 Summer Term, according to Dr. C. Robert Larson, director of the Summer Session.

The two sessions extend from June 7 through July 16 and July 19 through August 27.

Course offerings are available in nearly every area, with special provisions for in-service teachers in such departments as education and psychology.

In mathematics and sciences, classes are planned in biology, chemistry, physics and mathematics. The arts will provide opportunity to study painting, applied music, children's theatre and an interdisciplinary course.

Also available will be courses in English, foreign language, philosophy, religion, history and sociology.

In addition, students may make arrangements for independent study and research.

Two new course offerings are a Writers Workshop during the first session and a course in African History during the second session.

The Writers Workshop is open to the public as well as to regularly enrolled students and "offers anyone interested in creative writing a fine opportunity," according to Dr. Larson.

Children's stories to fill playbill

"Three Stories for Children" will be presented by the Wartburg Theatre tomorrow, April 3.

Two performances are scheduled in the Little Theatre: the first at 10:30 a.m. and the second at 1:30 p.m.

The plays, which were adapted from the original by Wartburg director Richard S. Shaper, are "The Three Bears" by James Southey, "The Emperor's New Clothes" by Hans Christian Andersen and "The Elephant's Child" by Rudyard Kipling.

Saturday's performance will be a tune-up for Wartburg's Touring Theatre, which will take these three plays plus eight others on the road during the May Term. This spring's tour will be to the New England states.

The original texts of the three children's stories are used in Shaper's adaptations. The characters speak, and a narrator adds such phrases as "said the Emperor" and "Once upon a time there were three bears. . ."

Shaper conceived of this plan while reading to his children. He said, "Making a play of each story wasn't a good idea at first because I thought we would lose such wonderful phrases as 'The great, gray, green, greasy Limpopo river. . .'. No set would ever be able to replace it. So we merged the ideas and came up with a performance of the stories themselves."

Each of the stories is familiar, but "The Three Bears" offers a few surprises. Imagine the lifted eyebrows when it's discovered that it really wasn't Goldilocks who raided the cottage of the three bears.

Goldilocks is a Victorian "correction" which backfired.

"The Emperor's New Clothes" is the best-known of the three stories, and "The Elephant's Child" is a revival of a once-popular story and deals with such phenomena as how the giraffe got his spots and how the rhinoceros got his skin.

Thirty receive grants

More than $4,000 in special and funded upperclass scholarships for the 1971-1972 school year has been granted to 30 Wartburg students.

According to Director of Financial Aids Jim Lenguadoro, students will also receive Honor Scholarships, Alumni Scholarships, Wartburg College Grants, Educational Opportunity Grants, State Scholarships, Iowa Tuition Grants, loans and employment assistance.

Winners of the special scholarships include:

Glenn Hallowell, son of juniors Beth and Lyle Hallowell, seems to be bored by the politics at the Student Body President Nominating Convention last Saturday night.

Professor attempts relevance

An Open Letter to Miss Jan Withers:

The article by Miss Withers in last week's Trumpet entitled "Classroom Scene Requires Evaluation" caused me a great deal of anguish, inasmuch as I really tried to do as she requested; that is, "... each instructor should honestly evaluate his own classroom situation and accurately determine how successfully he is fulfilling his individual role."

I performed this evaluation in regard to Philosophy 201 according to the two central criteria provided by Miss Withers; i.e., 1) whether I "teach the same information in the same manner year after year," and 2) whether the course "is relevant to the present world." Unfortunately, I failed both tests.

In the first case, I struggled with the possibility of changing the structure of Phil. 201. I went through stacks of complimentary copies of introductory textbooks trying to find one that would improve the course. However, each time I would compare the text against Pap and Edwards (the present text) and I would find it deficient in at least two or more respects. This activity was highly frustrating.

"Well," I thought, "why not throw away the textbooks and have a free discussion type of approach?" But, then I remembered a recent assignment I had the class in 201 perform. They wrote an essay about the problem of determinism before they were thoroughly cognizant of the representative writing regarding the problem. Then, later they wrote a follow-up essay.

The second attempt was considerably better. In fact, several students admitted that their first essay was either "a lot of garbage" or "a lot of bull." So I decided not to throw away the textbook. Well, what to do?

I could have each student pick a topic and lead the class with discussion following, and I could act as the moderator. The trouble is: I tried that approach a few terms ago, and the students decided they weren't getting their money's worth. In fact, they intimated to me that this method was an easy way for me to teach the class. (Believe me, it wasn't—I got sick to my stomach from all but about two of the presentations.)

For the time being, I am awfully sorry, Miss Withers, but Pap and Edwards has won again. Never fear, though, I will keep trying to find new and better ways to conduct my classes in Phil. 201.

Now, in regard to the relevancy of the information received by the students in Phil. 201, I performed an experiment. I asked myself, "What is really relevant to my life?" Here is the list of things and events which I found to be extremely important:

- 1) how to scramble eggs.
- 2) how to tune up the car and keep it running.
- 3) how to change my daughter's diapers without getting "gunked up."
- 4) how to keep my income tax payment to its legal minimum.
- 5) how to keep the walks free from snow and the grass cut without exerting too much energy.
- 6) how to impress my students.
- 7) how to impress the administration.
- 8) how to perform my husbandly duties.

Well, much to my horror I discovered that Julia Childs was better at No. 1, Hemingson's Auto at No. 2, my wife at No. 3, my lawyer at No. 4, any thirteen year old kid at No. 5, K. D. Briner (my friend) at No. 6 and No. 7, and Masters and Johnson have more information than I do in regard to No. 8. I decided that I was totally irrelevant in my function as a teacher in philosophy.

You see, Miss Withers, you caused me to have an identity crisis. An existential spectre arose before my eyes. I, as a teacher of philosophy, would be relegated forever to the oblivion of TOTAL IRRELEVANCY.

But I thank you, Miss Withers, because I girded up my existential loins heroically, committed my life passionately to the absurdity of teaching philosophy and made peace with the relevant world and my floundering ego.

Thailand security forces recently were shipped 10,000 bars of a special American soap. Each bar contains a written message. After washing his hands once, the user learns "Communists are dangerous." Then as the soap wears down, another message appears: "Communists are evil." Further down the lather, the soap reveals: "Communists are never to be trusted." These bars of soap are being distributed in "regions known to be infested with subversive elements."

News Briefs

Registration

Registration for Fall Term classes will begin Monday and continue through April 16, according to Registrar Vern Truesdale.

Fall Term class schedules are available at the registrar's office.

Full-time students may obtain registration materials from their advisers. Part-time students should go to the registrar's office for information. "There is no need to form a line outside the office at 6 a.m. on Monday morning," Truesdale said.

New course

Relation of the citizen to the state will be the subject of a new interdisciplinary course initiated by Wartburg students.

"The Citizen and the State," ID 344, will be offered during the Fall term, 1971.

The purpose of the class will be to examine the rights and obligations of the citizen as they stand in relation to the powers and duties of his government, according to junior Myron Max.

The course is offered as a discussion-seminar elective, and is not intended to fulfill any specific distribution requirements.

More information is available in the Student Senate Office.

Frosh funds

Members of the class of 1974 will meet Monday at 8 p.m. to discuss ways of making money, according to class president John Hoover.

Fund-raising plans include washing cars May 8 and arranging for members of the class to work for local farmers, Hoover said.

Women's council

Election of officers for Women's Legislative Council for the 1971-72 school year will be held Monday evening, April 5, even though adoption of the Judicial System proposed by the Governance Committee may disestablish existing governing councils.

Candidates running for the offices of president, vice president and secretary-treasurer will speak to women students in their respective housing units at previously designated times.

Election of next year's officers will follow.

Spring concert

Wartburg College Band, under the direction of Dr. W. E. Crist, will present its annual spring concert April 6.

The event will start at 8 p.m. in Neumann Chapel-auditorium.

Featured will be trumpet soloists senior Max Poe and junior Arlen Ottmar along with a guest appearance by the Wartburg stage band, the Knightlighters.

Iowa historian

Members of Iowa Alpha Chapter of Alpha Chi, honorary scholastic society, will hear an Iowa history expert at their annual banquet Tuesday, April 13, in the Castle Room.

Dr. Leland L. Sage, professor emeritus of history at the University of Northern Iowa, will speak on "The Witness of History."

The banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m.

New Alpha Chi officers will be installed at the banquet, and certificates will be presented to members who were initiated this year.

Senate

Senate action Wednesday night focused on the Governance issue. Acting President Ken Weitz announced that the Governance proposal will be presented for general student body discussion and vote.

Student body meeting is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday night in Buhr Lounge.

Off-campus senator Noel Rudie reported virtual faculty acceptance of the Governance issue.

Conference on Social Change

Remaining schedule

FRIDAY, April 2

7:30 John Froines, organizer in New Haven, Conn., and member of the Chicago 8 will be the featured speaker. Rick McPherson, Student Body President from the University of Minnesota and a member of the National Student Association Peoples' Peace Treaty Delegation, will also speak. A film will be shown on Vietnam and the treaty. Neumann Chapel-auditorium.

SATURDAY, April 3

9:00 Workshop on Gay Liberation. Conference Room.
10:00 Workshop on Ecotactics and Ecology Action. T.V. Room.
11:00 Black Minorities. Movements for change in the American Domestic field. Buhr Lounge.
1:30 Panel on United States imperialism. Movements for change in American policy towards the third world. Groups involved in the presentation will be the Committee of Returned Volunteers, the Venceramos Brigade and the New University Conference.
3:30 Discussion of Spring Anti-War Activities. Participants will be the Young Socialist Alliance and the American Friends Service Committee. T.V. Room.
6:30 Seminar on non-violent training and action. The Non-Violent Training and Action Center of Chicago will be conducting a session. American Friends Service Committee will also be participating. Personal preparation for effecting social change. T.V. Room.

Williams to direct Singers

Wartburg's Castle Singers will have a change in directorship next fall, according to Dr. Ronald Matthias, dean of faculty.
Dr. Franklin Williams, currently director of the Wartburg Community Symphony Orchestra, will be replacing Dr. James E. Fritschel, who at present is also director of the Wartburg Choir and Wartburg Community Oratorio Chorus.
The change is an attempt to equalize the work load and give

Dr. Fritschel more opportunity to work with the choir and chorus. Composed of 35 students, the Singers is a group of versatile performers developed in its present form six years ago.
The Singers have had an original musical, "What's the Meaning of This?," written for them, and they have staged it at the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis. More than eight thousand records of that musical have been sold.

Student nominations to close

Nominations for seven student body and class positions will close tomorrow.

Positions open are student body vice president, student body corresponding secretary, senate recorder, student body treasurer and class presidents.

Elections for the offices will be April 6, the day of the student body president election.

If needed, primaries will be held Monday, April 5.

The By-laws of the Student Body Constitution require that no more than two names be listed on the final ballot for any student body office.

As of Wednesday night, Elections Commissioner Jerry Lawrence said that four persons had filed papers for vice president but that the other races were not drawing as much interest.

Running for senior class president are Kermit Dieterich and Jim Hoffman.

As of Wednesday, no candidates for junior class president had filed papers at the Senate Office, but Eric Skuster and John Hoover were running for sophomore class president.

No papers had been filed for student body treasurer.

Sarah Lowe, the present senate recorder, will run for reelection. Junior Beth Hoover filed papers for corresponding secretary.

Requirements for the student body officers are the same as for student body president: the candidate must have a grade point of 2.250 for the last three semesters, the last semester of which he attended Wartburg; he must plan to attend Wartburg next year; and he must be at least a sophomore.

Candidates for vice president include juniors Dave Boedy, Hank Wellnitz, Jim Hoffman and Steve Richardson.

Wellnitz, Richardson and Hoffman were all candidates at the Student Body president Nominating Convention last week.

When asked his reasons for running for vice-president, Wellnitz said, "The important thing is to run for things, not win—it is a good chance to air issues of importance, such as that dealing with the governance committee."

"The role of the vice president should be that of supporting the president in any way needed and also acting as advocate of the student body," he added.

Hoffman said, "I feel the vice president's office ought to be almost equal to that of the president. He ought to be allowed to take over some of the duties of the president and also act as a mediator, as is the president.

"The vice president should take a bigger position in the student government and serve, in actuality, as the acting president when the president is gone," he said.

Hoffman also remarked that he believes student government should be revamped next year.

According to Richardson, "The vice president should have the same capabilities as the president because the function of vice president is very often to fill the shoes of the president.

"Just because it is the second best position does not mean it is less important. The vice president should be more active and represent the views of the students. I feel myself to be the best person for this job," he continued.

The fourth candidate, junior Dave Boedy, was unavailable for comment because of a theatrical performance in Rochester, Minn.

Winter sports letters awarded

(NEWS BUREAU)

Twenty-five Wartburg College athletes have been awarded Winter Sports letters here, it was announced today by Athletic Director John Kurtz.

MVP in basketball was senior guard Tom Manchester, and MVP in wrestling was senior Tony Stevens.

Manchester ended his collegiate career at Wartburg with 1,277 points, which places him sixth on the Knights' all-time scoring list. Stevens was Coach Dick Walker's only Iowa Conference champion, having won that title at 134 pounds. Stevens compiled a 22-1 record over the 1970-71 season, and he also led the squad in pins with eight.

Other basketball letterwinners included senior Fred Grawe; juniors Tim Koch, Dave Platte, Mike Rasche and Dan Schmidt; sophomores Frank Stewart, Ron Washington, Pete Griffin and freshman Fred Waldsten.

Also earning wrestling letters were seniors Mannie Holmes, Greg Slager, and Joe Breitbach; junior Mark Mueller; sophomores Bob Wallace, Russ Smith, Roger Buchholz, Bruce Eldridge, Gene Johnson and Dennis Johnson; and freshmen Randy Neuendorf, Steve Blasberg, Fred Jensen and Steve Reinig.

Baseball team drops two

Central will be Wartburg's first Iowa Conference opponent in single games today and tomorrow.

The Dutchmen, who split with Wartburg last year, have played Georgia Southwestern earlier but Coach Gary Boeyink has refused to divulge the outcome.

Today's game started at 3 p.m.

while tomorrow's is set for 1 p.m. Loras and Wartburg collide in two non-conference games at Dubuque April 6.

In the only meeting of the two clubs last year, Loras won both games of a double-header.

Getting only two hits in two games, Knight's baseball dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Northern Iowa at Cedar Falls Wednesday.

Terry Goetzinger and Ron Borcharding were the only successful Wartburg hitters, each getting a single in the 9-2 loss in the opener.

The Panthers collected eight hits and had four errors to five for Wartburg.

In the night-cap, Wartburg went hitless and fell to Northern Iowa 7-2.

Losing pitchers for Wartburg were Jerry Johnson in the first game and Bryce Zacharias in the second.

Northern Iowa boosted its season record to 4-2 while Wartburg fell to 0-2.

Coe and Albert Lea have been rescheduled for late April. Both games were postponed because of weather conditions.

P.E. adds fencing class

Eddie Thomas of Cedar Falls is under contract to teach the newest addition to Wartburg's physical education program, fencing, this May Term.

Thomas received instruction from Joseph Wolfgang VonRieher, a German master, and went on to compete and coach for several years.

He is presently working as an artist for Montgomery Ward and teaches fencing at the University of Northern Iowa.

Thomas is well qualified, according to Roger Bishop, director of physical education. He earned his master's certificate for the foil and has competed in intercollegiate bouts and been a member of national fencing organizations.

The course, proposed earlier this year, generated immediate interest with 70 students signing up, although only 30 can participate.

Dr. Bishop indicated a desire to continue the course, but scheduling facilities makes it impossible to offer at any time except May Term. If interest remains strong, he said that fencing would become a permanent May Term course.
